Since yesterday Hope has been a city without traffic lights. But if you think it is because dwindling war-time automobile use has made traffic lights obsolete you are wrong.

Great Number of American Forts in Day Attacks

London, June 23 (AP)—Formations of American Flying Fortresses roared low across Dover and Folkestone this evening, dispatches from those coastal points said, apparently returning from new daylight attacks on Europe following a heavy assault last night by RAF four-engined bombers on the German steel and communications center of Muehlheim.

Townpeople in Dover and Folkestone viewed into the streets as the returning Fortresses swept over at less than 2,000 feet. They waved to the big bombers and cheered.

It was reported authoritatively that aerial photographs taken during yesterday's Fortress attack on Huls, Germany, showed the highly combustible synthetic rubber plant there was set afire and the entire target plastered with explosive and incendiary bombs.

Today Fortress formations returned from across the channel while squadrons of two-engine Wellington bombers of the RAF still were pounding targets in enemy territory. Scores of high-flying Allied fighters also were across the channel, continuing the pattern of round-the-clock assault.

The RAF night attack again took the British to the Ruhr.

Governors Say South to Stay Democratic

Columbus, O., June 23 (AP)—A Sampling of views of southern governors, both on and off the record, disclosed today that while there is considerable dissatisfaction below the Mason-Dixon line with certain New Deal policies, the traditional Democratic stronghold will support the Democratic ticket next year fourth term or no.

These state heads attending the annual governors' conference made it plain, however, they would make certain platform demands at the 1944 national convention as "bar-raising points," and that the south's big block of votes would be cast for "sore spots" in party affairs in their section, the governors said. But they believed these could be healed "within the party framework."

The consensus seemed to be that while there would be opposition to the president's re-nomination, would he would they would go along. Some felt a southerner on a ticket as the vice presidential nominee would help to appease southern leaders in the belief that if elected, he would see that their problems were given "more attention."

Asked about reports of a "political revolt" taking place in the South, Gov. Broughton of North Carolina said: "There is no such revolt as has been reported. There's a sharp difference of opinion, but North Carolina will support the national Democratic ticket next year, and I think that will be true of the whole south. There is some resentment, but it will be cleared up by the party. Anyone counting on the south breaking away is missing the superficial for the real."

Variety of Birds

Mr. and Mrs. McElwain, who have a farm northwest of here, are trying what will hatch out of a variety of birds—and who's to do the hatching? The nest, allowed out place in the ground, was covered with grass and earth. It contained not only three eggs, but also eight quail and two pheasant eggs.

Jap Patrol on New Guinea Is Routed by Allies

—War in Pacific

Allied Headquarters in Australia, June 23 (AP)—The jungle front line the Allies began establishing on the approaches to Salamaua, New Guinea, last February has proved itself against the strongest attack yet hurled at it by the Japanese.

Today's communiqué disclosed that Monday afternoon enemy patrols of considerable size struck at Australian ground fighters on Lababin Ridge at Mubo, 12 miles west of Salamaua, but were "sharply repulsed with over 100 enemy casualties," the communiqué said, after which deadly fire was poured on them by American-manned Boston attack planes as they began a bloody retreat. Twenty times the Bostons roared low over the withdrawing Japanese.

Since the Allies wrested the Papuan peninsula from the Japanese last January, their jungle fighters have infiltrated northwest toward the Huon Gulf enemy bases of Salamaua and Lae but little progress has been reported since it was disclosed April 26 that the Allies commanded ridges overlooking Japanese-held Mubo. Many strafing attacks in the area on enemy positions by Allied planes have been made but ground fighting has been virtually at a standstill for many weeks.

Today's communiqué also told of a raid by American Liberator bombers and Australian Beaufighters on the Japanese floatplane base of Taberfano on the Aroa Islands, above Darwin. Some of the float planes attempted to intercept the daylight raiders. One floatplane was reported shot down, four others damaged in the air and two at their base moorings.

Punishment for Instigators of Race Riot

Detroit, June 23 (AP)—Plans for finding and punishing the instigators of the savage race riots of Monday and Tuesday night that brought death to 29 persons and injuries to hundreds of others were being made today by state and local authorities. Meanwhile, Army troops numbering more than 3,500 maintained a modified form of military control as they patrolled Detroit's Negro sections, still showing effects of bloody conflict.

Governor Harry P. Kelly and Mayor Edward Jeffries announced they were giving serious consideration to asking for a special grand jury. Promising punishment "commensurate with their crimes," the governor said: "The real instigators and assaulters are the ones we are after. They will be found by sorting out the more than 1,000 prisoners we have and by seeking them out in their hiding places if they are not among the prisoners."

The governor announced at the same time he had called State Attorney General Herbert J. Rusk from Lansing to aid in preparing for prosecutions. Governor Kelly also disclosed that John S. Bugas, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here, is interviewing prisoners and aiding in the sorting out of the minor offenders from those against whom more serious charges will be brought.

The city was calm today after a night in which a few sporadic outbreaks occurred.

Governor Kelly modified his state-of-emergency proclamation to permit the playing of a doubleheader today between the Cleveland and Detroit American League baseball teams and the resumption of horse racing at the Michigan State Fair Grounds. Some 350 state troops were assigned to the ball park. Still banned indefinitely was the sale of alcoholic beverages. Motion picture theaters must close at 9:15 p.m. and curfew regulations between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. (EWT) remained in effect.

A quick survey of the major war production plants today showed thousands of workers who absented themselves yesterday had returned to work. Some plants reported absenteeism at only about normal while others said working forces were "rapidly returning to normal."

Latest victim of Monday's outbreak to succumb to wounds was Mrs. Sally Grabowski, 58 year old white woman, shot in the head Monday night while walking near her home on the east side. She died in a hospital last night.

Raids, French Guerillas Hit Nazi Transport

Washington, June 23 (AP)—The combination of Allied air raids and railway sabotage inside France has been immobilizing about 200 trains daily, according to information reaching Fighting French headquarters here through persons escaping from German-occupied Europe.

Both the airmen who swoop across the English channel and the French guerillas operating behind enemy lines concentrate on crippling transportation, a headquarters spokesman said today, particularly by putting railway locomotives out of commission. Many locomotives beyond range of the marauding fliers succumb to the boiler-wrecking tactics of the saboteurs or are wrecked in derailments engineered by guerillas.

One of the most successful derailment jobs recently was carried out by guerillas on the line between Nevers and Chagny, in Central France. Fifty-two Germans were killed and 150 injured in this wreck and traffic was blocked several days. Another derailment on the same line, the reports said, upset a troop train moving soldiers to the Russian front.

The guerillas also have been active in the wrecking of power plants, water works and factories. From March 15 to April 15, the reports said, there were no fewer than 122 acts of sabotage in Savoy, chiefly in power plants.

The reports also mentioned a shut-down of the Gnome El Rhone aviation engine plant at Limoges May 28 because of destruction of the central transformers. Rubber-reclaiming factories in the same area were out of production six months because of wrecked boilers.

New reprisals against French men regarded as agents of Germany also were listed in the reports. These included the stabbing to death of the secretary-general of the Vienne department of Jacques Doriot's Fascist Parti Populaire Français, identified as Dr. Michel Guerin; the fatal shooting of Mayor Din of Pierrefitte, near Paris; and the assassination of two French judges who had condemned Frenchmen to death for sabotage. Both these judges, the reports said, were previously notified by letter that they would be killed for treason.

The commission announced that it did not object to the new rates they would become effective on that date. Under the proposed change some charges will be lowered and a few will be raised slightly. There will be no change in local exchange rates.

The company agreed to the reduction yesterday.

Germans Still Guessing on Invasion Plans

London, June 23 (AP)—The Germans, still playing an invasion guessing game, were represented by the Berlin radio today as picking Italy as the most likely Allied landing spot but there were indications they expect their junior partner to meet the initial attack with little aid from the Nazi war machine.

A Berlin broadcast recorded by the ministry of information promised help "in case of a decisive battle on Italian soil," implying that until then Mussolini's legions should shoulder the greater part of the weight.

There were some reports on the other hand that the Nazis already were rushing troops and planes to the Calabria coastline, the section of the Italian mainland nearest to the present Allied bases, but there was no confirmation.

The Berlin broadcast hinted Mussolini has called home his troops that have been policing occupied territory in Europe.

"During the war only part of the Italians' arms have been reserved for the defense of Italy," the report said, "but now all armed Italian forces are defending their mother country."

Erich Schneider, editor-in-chief of Transocean News Agency, said flatly in a Berlin broadcast heard yesterday by the Associated Press that "Italy is expecting invasion."

All signs point to landings there, he declared, but added of course the other Mediterranean coasts, especially the Balkans, must be watched, too. There have been frequent reports of late that the Nazis are concentrating strength in those latter sectors.

As for the Soviet front, Capt. Kurt Jeserich declared in another German broadcast the Nazis are "continually" increasing their strength for "a new action" against the Russians although "it is not known" when that will take place.

The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper social Demokrat meanwhile quoted the Nazi-dominated Brüsseler Zeitung as calling for frank discussion of the "bad situation" because "never before has the enemy been in a more threatening position."

Telephone Rates to Be Revised

Little Rock, June 23 (AP)—The Utilities Commission today allowed Southwestern Bell Telephone company until Aug. 17 to file revised rate schedules to effect reduction of intrastate toll charges amounting to approximately $42,000 annually.

Supply Bases on Italian Boot Get Air Blasting

—Africa

By NOLAND NORGAAARD

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, June 23 (AP)—Sweeping in with heavy bomb loads less than 12 hours after American bombers had jolted the same targets by daylight, Wellingtons of the RAF smashed at Salerno Monday night in a continuation of Allied efforts to knock out the underpinnings of Mussolini's supply system for Southern Italy and Sicily.

Two-ton blockbusters were planted squarely in the freight yards and near barracks at Salerno, 30 miles southeast of Naples, and huge fires broke out, Allied headquarters said.

Salerno is a key point on the main electric railway running southward from Naples to the Italian toe. The American raid already had caused extensive damage to the many railway sidings, repair depots and approaches to the yards there, and reconnaissance reports showed railway traffic already had been interrupted for 24 hours by the smashing of roundhouses, turntables and other installations at other points along the line.

The Wellingtons encountered only light anti-aircraft fire as they swept in over their targets, and no enemy fighters, so all the raiders returned safely to their bases.

The only other aerial activity of the Northwest African Air Forces yesterday was patrolling and reconnaissance, the bulk of the hundreds of bombers and fighters being inactive.

But a medium-sized enemy vessel, caught towing half a dozen barges 30 miles off the southwest coast of Sardinia the previous night, was sunk by RAF Beaufighters which swept through a barrage by an escorting destroyer and tug.

The Beaufighters scored two direct hits and the ship blew up. The Allied airmen then attacked the barges and destroyer, but the result was not observed.

One Allied plane was lost in all yesterday's operations, which included forays by Malta intruders over Sicily and Southern Italy last night when railway stations and a factory were attacked with bombs and machine-guns.

A supplement to a Malta communiqué said Malta-based Plymouth Mosquito bombers also harassed Sicilian airfields and railways last night, especially at Sirani, Licata and Trebisacce.

"The nation's fathers are in state of uncertainty about their draft status," May declared. "They pick up the paper one day and read where some officers in Washington say they will be drafted in three months, and later on another official comes out and says we may not take fathers until next year or maybe not at all."

"It seems to me that the fathers should be relieved of the uncertainty they are naturally placed in. If we are going to take them, let's tell them so and let them get their affairs in shape. If we are not going to take them, or won't need them for some time, we ought to tell them that, too."

Other committee members joined with May in asserting they had been unable to learn anything definite about plans for drafting men with children and said they believed the situation should be cleared up.

They will seek enlightenment, May said, from Manpower Commissioner Paul W. McNutt and Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey. Whether the information they obtain will be made public in detail, however, May said he could not say.

A similar call for an "end to the confusion" was expressed by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) yesterday as he renewed a drive for consideration of his bill to bar the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers before next Jan. 1.

"There is not a man in the United States between 18 and 45 years of age," Wheeler said, "who can tell from day to day where he stands."

Short Wave Sets Barred at Jap Camp

Jerome, June 23 (AP)—Short-wave radio sets will be barred to all residents of the Japanese Relocation Center here effective July 1, Project Director Paul A. Taylor announced today.

Sets are to be turned in to the Internal Security Office and persons having short-wave sets in their possession after the first of July will be reported to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Taylor said.

Possession and use of short-wave radio is already prohibited alien residents in the center, the director explained. The new order is directed to evacuees who are American citizens, Taylor said.

Red Bombers Hammer at Nazi Airdromes

London, June 23 (AP)—Russian bombers hammered again at Nazi airdromes behind the lines last night but the only ground activity reported today by the midday Russian communiqué consisted of scouting and artillery bombardments.

About 20 German planes were destroyed on the ground when Red Army airmen struck behind the enemy's defenses on the Leningrad front, and three enemy planes were downed in air combat near Rostov, said the bulletin, recorded by the Associated Press from Moscow broadcasts.

Yesterday the Russians said their airmen bombed supply depots and airdromes at several points along the front and shot 17 enemy planes from formations attempting to attack the Leningrad sector. The Russian bulletin admitted the loss of nine Russian fighters during the aerial combats.

The Germans said in a Berlin broadcast that they downed 29 Soviet planes yesterday as their air force raided objectives near Volkovo and in the southern sector.

The Russian midday communiqué said German fortifications were destroyed by heavy Soviet guns in the Smolensk sector of the western front, in the Sevsk region of the Orel hinge and in the Lishchansk region of the Donets river front.

German reconnaissance patrols were beaten off west of Rostov on the Don and again when they tried to cross the river near Lisichansk, the Russians said. They reported scouting activity by their units near Sevsk and on the Leningrad front.

The Russians reported a renewal of scattered attacks by Polish patriots against German occupation authorities in which they said an ammunition dump was blown up at Pazanyne and a German troop train was wrecked near Katowice.

The patriots were reported to have struck boldly in the former Polish capital of Warsaw, killing or wounding "many Germans" when they mined a military bath house, and killing nine Nazi officers in another attack.

Rickenbacker in Moscow on War Mission

Moscow, June 23 (AP)—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker has been in Moscow since Sunday on a mission as the representative of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. It was disclosed today.

Rickenbacker arrived at 1 p.m. Sunday in a four-engine Liberator.

The news of Rickenbacker's presence in Moscow was made public to a Kremlin ceremony where United States Ambassador William H. Standley presented 80 American military awards to Russian soldiers and sailors.

His visit to Russia is a continuation of his tour of world battlefronts. It was assumed that he will see various high-ranking military people and officials, possible Premier Joseph Stalin himself.

The flier was accompanied by his personal physician, Dr. Alexander Dahl, and two representatives of the War Department, Colonel William Nickols and Maj. A. B. Sherry. The plane was piloted by Capt. W. F. Richmond and the crew included Capt. Lieut. H. H. Cargle and Navigator W. B. Hicks.

The party was greeted at the airport by Ambassador Standley, Brig. Gen. Joseph A. Michael, American military attaché, and others of the embassy staff, as well as high-ranking Russian officials.

Third Strike Is Halted by Order of John L. Lewis

Pittsburgh, June 23 (AP)—Ending their third work stoppage in seven weeks, members of the United Mine Workers began returning to steel company-owned coal pits in Pennsylvania and West Virginia today as union officials relayed word to the men of the truce announced by their policy committee at Washington.

The back-to-work trek was a mere trickle on the morning shifts, but an increasing number was expected to report on afternoon and night shifts. Operators and union representatives in the Pittsburgh area looked for a general resumption of work tomorrow.

The U. S. Steel Corporation estimated its Pennsylvania and West Virginia mines would produce 7,000 tons of coal today, a fraction of normal capacity. A spokesman estimated 16 percent of the coal diggers were back at work at corporation-operated mines in West Virginia and eight per cent at Pennsylvania mines.

Prospects the coal supply would soon be replenished caused steel officials to call off plans for further curtailment of operations. U. S. Steel, which was hit hardest, announced it closed only five of its 37 Pittsburgh area blast furnaces and 13 more shutdowns scheduled by tomorrow night now will not be necessary.

John Komolo, UMW organizer in the Uniontown, Pa., area, said he was notified by district 4 officials that the miners should return to work immediately. Remarkably that he was "putting through these orders right and left." Komolo predicted sizeable turnouts at afternoon and night shifts today. He said some union locals held meetings to vote on the matter, but others did not, depending on the wishes of the locals.

Some union leaders commented the miners were not anxious to return without a contract.

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
Washington, June 23 (AP)—The United Mine Workers decision to dig coal for the government until Oct. 31 ended the nation's third general wartime mine strike today, but operators and others protested the main issue was merely postponed, not settled.

The back-to-work order of UMW President John L. Lewis and his policy committee was conditional, and a prolonged fight was forecast. Besides fixing a new albeit more distant deadline, Lewis told the government in effect if it wanted coal it could not restore direction of the mines to their owners.

His statement also carried a broad indication that the miners would resort to the courts to obtain the pay for underground travel time which they failed to get from the War Labor Board.

A statement issued in behalf of the Appalachian operators declared the action of the UMW policy committee "is in direct violation of the War Labor Board's (WLB) directive of June 18."

"If the president" said the operators, referring to Mr. Roosevelt "permits the mines to be operated..."

Buyers Asked to Spread Food Stamps

Washington, June 23 (AP)—The office of Price Administration (OPA) today asked housewives to spread the use of their K, L, M, and N red stamps, which expire next Wednesday, to avoid a last minute rush at retail stores.

Pointing out that there is nothing to be gained in waiting until the last few days to use these red stamps, OPA said housewives shopping well ahead of the expiration deadline will find stores less crowded and a greater variety of meats, fats, oils and cheeses in the counters.

Validity dates of red stamps to be used during July will be announced soon.

Blue stamps K, L, and M used for the purchase of canned and processed foods expire July 7. Validity dates of the next series of blue stamps also will be announced soon.

Pay Increase
Washington, June 23 (AP)—Fred M. Vinson, director of economic stabilization, today set aside the award of an eight-cent hourly wage increase recently granted to 1,100,000 non-operating railroad employees by a three-man emergency board of the National Railway Labor panel.

BBC Tells French People to 'Be Ready' for Invasion

Analysis of the News by Mackenzie

Editorial Comment Written Today and Moved by Telegraph or Cable.

By MAX HILL

The day the Axis radio told us there would be an invasion of Europe—June 22nd—has passed without any sign of activity on the part of Allied forces.

There was on that day, however, one dramatic clue to events to come. The British Broadcasting Company in a program beamed to France said the following:

"Be ready!"

The French were told eight months ago the Allies would let them know of invasion in time for them to give every aid possible. The broadcast, which was described as sponsored by the inter-Allied high command, urged the French to be prepared and ready to act at any moment henceforth.

Now this may be just another phase of our excellent campaign to confuse the Nazis, but it will be a bitter blow to French morale should it be another ruse.

It is obvious that in some parts of France the inhabitants would welcome Allied invaders and do all possible to assist them. The Germans are aware of this, too, and they know also this area is more vulnerable than other parts of Europe.

It would be difficult, if not impossible, for instance, to send an invasion force through Holland or Belgium because of the type of coastline encountered there.

I talked recently with a Dutch lieutenant who helped set up some of the original defense there. In his opinion, the Dutch coastline will be difficult to defend, but even more difficult to attack.

First of all, the sand dunes will not support heavy gun bases. But the sea is so shallow that a man can walk two miles out from shore in most places without encountering deeper than his shoulders. That would make him a perfect target for the Nazis.

The BBC broadcast was the most specific reference to a probable invasion point which has been made to date.

In Washington, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox told a press conference, "preparations for the second front are going on." Then he added he could not speak in specific terms about the time and place.

His remarks were made in response to an inquiry about the Russian communiqué which Moscow broadcast on the second anniversary of the Russo-German war. The Russians asked bluntly for a second front, and said victory was impossible without it.

There are several ways to view this development. Could it be that the Russians fear—or know—there will be no second front in Europe this year, and are putting their protest on the record books immediately?

If so, the remarks of Secretary Knox must have reassured them, and he also admitted indirectly that he could understand why the Russians didn't want to become involved with the Japanese at this time.

There has been much criticism, most of it unwarranted, about Russia's attitude in the Far East. Secretary Knox made it clear that at least the navy does not hold this against the Soviets. But the most important part of what he said on this subject was this:

"Russia doesn't want an involvement there, while she has the German enemy engaged on the west."

While the secretary didn't say in so many words that we have an understanding with Russia about the war in the Pacific after the European conflict is over, it could easily be inferred from that one remark.

Only a few hours ago there was an added indication of how closely we are working with our Russian allies. Captain Eddie Rickenbacker has been in Moscow since Sunday as a special representative of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.

And in the Kremlin, Admiral William H. Standley, ambassador, presented to Foreign Commissar Molotov six medals for combat service to Russian naval and army heroes. That was no empty gesture on our part, and the Russians realize it.

Boston Red Sox Steadily Climbs in Standings

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Boston Red Sox are beginning to look more and more like the team they are likely to emerge in on the homecoming New York Yankees and Washington Senators have been enjoying at the top of the American league.

It took Boston a long time to get rolling. At the end of the first month of the season they were in the cellar and had been held to seven or less hits in 17 of their 28 games.

But in the last three games Boston has blasted out seven homers against the best pitching the Philadelphia Athletics could muster as last night moved into a tie for third place with the Cleveland Indians, five games out of first place.

The Red Sox opened the campaign with a desperate outfield problem, but they seem to have solved this by a succession of deals both in the minors and majors and have well earned the improvement they have made in the standings in the second month of the season.

In addition Cecil (Tex.) Hughes, the team pitching star of the Sox, has proved himself unquestionably the outstanding hurler in the league. Last night he beat the Athletics 7-1 with five hits and four strikeouts.

Washington narrowed the gap between first and second place to two games by nailing out the Yankees 3-2 with Mickey Vernon hitting a home run and a triple to star for the Senators.

The Chicago White Sox whipped the St. Louis Browns 5-3 in a night game to advance into a virtual tie for sixth place with the Athletics.

In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers captured their third straight from the New York Giants 7-4 and cut the lead of the Philadelphia Cardinals to two games.

Big Paul Derringer shut out the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 for the Cubs in a morning game at Chicago.

Boston best the Phillies 7-6 with a five-run second inning and a two-run homer by Catcher Phil Masi in the fifth, although the Braves were outthrew and outpitched Triplett also hit a roundtripper for Philadelphia.

The Boston Red Sox are beginning to look more and more like the team they are likely to emerge in on the homecoming New York Yankees and Washington Senators have been enjoying at the top of the American league.

It took Boston a long time to get rolling. At the end of the first month of the season they were in the cellar and had been held to seven or less hits in 17 of their 28 games.

But in the last three games Boston has blasted out seven homers against the best pitching the Philadelphia Athletics could muster as last night moved into a tie for third place with the Cleveland Indians, five games out of first place.

The Red Sox opened the campaign with a desperate outfield problem, but they seem to have solved this by a succession of deals both in the minors and majors and have well earned the improvement they have made in the standings in the second month of the season.

In addition Cecil (Tex.) Hughes, the team pitching star of the Sox, has proved himself unquestionably the outstanding hurler in the league. Last night he beat the Athletics 7-1 with five hits and four strikeouts.

Washington narrowed the gap between first and second place to two games by nailing out the Yankees 3-2 with Mickey Vernon hitting a home run and a triple to star for the Senators.

The Chicago White Sox whipped the St. Louis Browns 5-3 in a night game to advance into a virtual tie for sixth place with the Athletics.

In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers captured their third straight from the New York Giants 7-4 and cut the lead of the Philadelphia Cardinals to two games.

Big Paul Derringer shut out the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 for the Cubs in a morning game at Chicago.

Boston best the Phillies 7-6 with a five-run second inning and a two-run homer by Catcher Phil Masi in the fifth, although the Braves were outthrew and outpitched Triplett also hit a roundtripper for Philadelphia.

Whirlaway arrives at Washington Park, Chicago, where money-winning champion is expected to again tackle Alsab in three $50,000 stakes—the Stars and Stripes Handicap, July 4; the Arlington, July 31; and the Washington Park, Sept. 6. Calumet cannon ball is also expected to meet Count Fleet later in season.

Sloan Becomes Talk of the Southern Loop

By SAM G. HARRIS

Little Rock, June 23 —(AP)— A cherubic-faced, amiable, girthed young man whose name graced a semi-pro lineup—three weeks ago is making the earnest gentlemen who toil as pitchers on Southern Association clubs go hunting for their most effective assets.

The human butterball with an infectious grin has been safely in every game he's seen since joining the Little Rock Travelers June 13—compiling a batting mark of .545 with 24 hits, including two home runs and five doubles, in 44 times at bat.

True, the roly poly, patrolling right field for the Travelers with a painful charley horse in his leg had faced the hurriers of only two clubs—Nashville and Knoxville. But, the record he has made is enough to arouse apprehension elsewhere because those pitchers have been around enough to occasionally halt the garden variety hitting streaks.

The tenacious in question—and Little Rock fans won't tolerate much questioning—is Bruce "Fatso" Sloan.

Sloan is 28, married and the papa of a nine-months old son. Admittedly overweight, he has "about 200 pounds" unequally distributed on his foot, 10 inch frame. Pleased to be back in organized baseball after nine years absence, Sloan hopes he'll get into shape and over his charley horse soon.

He modestly says his hitting against Southern Association pitching thus far is a "hot streak" that won't last.

However, Sloan figures the Southern hurling he has seen is "no worse or better" than that of the Victory League back in Kansas where he was massaging the horses' hide at a 450 clip when the Travelers prevailed on him to come to terms.

An Oklahoma City boy, Sloan broke into organized ball with the Oklahoma City Indians of the old Western League in 1932. He hit .297 that year. He hit in the .260's in 1933 and .273 in 1934. He went on the voluntarily retired list in 1935 after a salary disagreement and stayed there until Claude Loughy, ex-trainer hurler, sent in glowing reports on him about the same time the Travelers discovered he was part of the property they got when they purchased the Indian roster after the Texas League folded.

New York, June 23 —(AP)— The latest number of the Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school "Sprint" brings the news that the station will begin working on a six-day week in July.

The daily sports period won't be on the Saturday schedule. Wonder what effect that will have when the football of other stations take up the same idea?

Newest candidate for the Dodgers' shortstop job is 17-year-old Gene Mauck of Los Angeles, who has been working out with the Duns for a couple of days. He came from the same high school that sent Mickey Owen Cliff Dapper and Roy Partee up to the majors.

No Handicap At All

Tom McHugh, Salt Lake City golf pro, has cooked up a new handicap system that sounds like a pip.

A 05-100 golfer is given a three-hole handicap and is allowed to subtract the total strokes for his worst three holes from his score.

The handicaps do down with the scores until a 71-75 shooter gets only a half-hole handicap.

If they increase proportionately, this, may take up golf again. We'd rate about a 17-hole handicap.

Huntington, Ind. — The painting worries of the Huntington county sheriff, who had been patiently waiting for a contractor to get around to redecorating the jail, are over.

Sisters of Mercy Inherit Estate

St. Louis, June 23 (AP) — The late John G. Lonsdale's "Peaceful Valley" comprising 80 acres in Garland county, Ark., eventually will go to the Catholic Sisters of Mercy.

Lonsdale's will left the property to his widow, Mrs. Marie Allen Lonsdale, with a provision that a son, John G. Lonsdale, Jr., receive it after her death. Following the son's death, it will go to the religious order for a retreat.

Lonsdale, co-trustee of the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad and former broker and banker, died June 19 in Hot Springs, Ark. His will was filed in probate court yesterday.

After disposing of other real estate in equal shares to Mrs. Lonsdale, the son and a daughter, Mrs. Aile Lonsdale Ramsey.

Gil Dodd Sets Records for 2,000 Meters

Passaic, N. J., June 23 —(AP)—

The first American record for the unusual 2,000-meter run was on the books today, and the world had a new mark for the seldom-run two-thirds mile to shoot at.

At an invitational track and field meet yesterday, Gil Dodd, the Boston Divinity student, negotiated the 2,000-meter distance in five minutes, 38.8 seconds—27 seconds slower than the world's mark for the route set last year by Gunder Haegg in Sweden. A.A.U. Secretary Dan Ferris said the event never had been run before in the United States.

The world's two-thirds mile record fell under the spiked shoes of William Hulce of the New York Athletic Club, who lopped three and two-tenths seconds from the 2:45.4 record set by Mal Sheppard in 1910. Hulce won the 800-meter event at the National A.A.U. championships in New York Sunday.

Herb Thompson, who tied the world's record for the 80-yard sprint last year, shattered the mark yesterday—only to find his performance would not be recognized because only two times had been assigned to the event. Thompson, running for the Jersey City Department of Recreation, finished the short distance in 7.9 seconds, but his tie with the mark set in 1886 by Wendell Baker will remain on the books, said Ferris.

The meet was the third annual twilight field and track carnival sponsored by Pope Pius XII Diocesan High School.

Seeks Delay in Hanging of Traitor

Washington, June 23 —(AP)— Attorney Nicholas Salowich of Detroit said today he would ask a supreme court justice to delay the hanging of Max Stephan, convicted traitor, scheduled for July 2.

Interviewed as he was going to confer with Attorney General Biddle and General Lyons, the justice department's pardon attorney, Salowich said he would ask the court to review a decision in which the 6th federal circuit court at Cincinnati upheld a federal district court in its denial of a new trial for Stephan and said "there is no reversible error on the record."

Stephan is a Detroit restaurateur convicted of aiding the escape of Hans Peter Krug, a captured German flyer.

The conference at the Justice Department presumably was in line with Salowich's effort to get presidential intervention in the case. He tried yesterday without success to see President Roosevelt, and he indicated today he might be having the groundwork for a new approach at the White House, inasmuch as the recommendation of the attorney general probably would be sought in any presidential action relating to pardon or commutation.

Salowich said he had conferred with Lyons yesterday and had been told the president could not act until all the legal steps had been exhausted. This would include, the attorney said, a new attempt to get the supreme court to review the case, which it previously had refused to do.

Third Strike

erated under the terms laid down by John L. Lewis, the main issue remains unresolved. Nothing is settled. The present strike is merely postponed. The main question now is, can Mr. Lewis continue to defy the sole agency designated by the United States government to make final determinations in labor disputes?

The immediate reaction of WLF Chairman William H. Davis to the miners' decision as expressed in these words:

"I take Mr. Lewis' statement to mean that the production of coal will be resumed under the conditions ordered by the War Labor Board, and I think that's all the country is interested in. It appears that the new deadline is Halloween when pumpkins frighten children."

Whether this victory was shared by a majority of the board was still in doubt. Technically Lewis was still in defiance of the board. He refused to sign the contract as directed, calling it "an infamous yellow-dog contract," even though it appeared he was accepting the wage terms of that contract.

Whether this means the miners, contrary to traditional policy agreed to work without a contract is a matter of interpretation.

It was possible the WLB might yet protest to the president against Lewis' complicity that the government must retain direction of the mines.

A well-placed source said nationalization of the mines, as such, was not contemplated, and the operators would be continued, as managers for the government, although stricter supervision would be required.

Interior Secretary Ickes, custodian of the mines for the government, would say only this: "The mine workers understand that my job is solely to produce the coal necessary for war purposes and to heat America's homes this winter. To do this will require the utmost cooperation of the mine workers and of the entire coal industry. I feel sure that this cooperation will be given."

A further indication that the fight was far from ended was seen in the comment of Rep. Wadsworth (R-NY) co-author of the selective service law: "This is just another postponement of settlement of the fundamental issue: Is the government as representative of the whole people in time of war superior to John L. Lewis? The issue had better be settled, and the sooner, the better."

"I have no doubt it is Lewis' objective to put control of the mines in the hands of the government just as long as he can compel it to stay there, out of the hands of the owners."

"It is an enormously important precedent and if maintained, the same tactics may be purchased without end, in any number of industries, in the hands of industrialists. It's another way of specializing important industries without legislation."

Reports from the field indicated the miners would start returning to the pits for the late shifts today, but full production may not be restored in a day or two because many local unions wait for official notice from UMW headquarters. That was going out today.

Hollywood

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — Julian Duvivier is the man who makes four or five movies in one. It is a very thing business, he says, and he is going to take a rest from it. His next movie will be just one movie.

Duvivier is a bright-eyed, neat little Frenchman who drapes his words with gestures. He has that old Gallic charm you read about, that lively interest in things and people and good food and wines.

He began his multiple - movie career with "Un Carnet de Bal" back in France. That told many stories, each stemming from a name of a young lady's dance program. When Hollywood got him, he was the first thought for the many-titled "Tales of Manhattan," and from there he went on to the four-storied "For All We Know." This used to be called "Flesh and Fantasy," and its making sprang from Duvivier's association with Charles Boyer as a star of "Tales." Boyer was eager to get started as a producer, and this was their first choice.

"For All We Know's" four tales all suggest more or less supernatural influences, dealing with "forces" that rule human lives.

Duvivier will tell you that he is not superstitious—"Oh, not at all,"—but he will also tell you, with gesture, "what I myself know in my own experience." He will tell you that he draws no conclusions, her merely wonders. Afterward, in it is easy to understand why he would turn his camera to a story of mysterious forces:

It began 10 years ago (he says) when an old friend of his, a charming, aged French actor named Camille Beuve, offered to cast Duvivier's horoscope. He returned with a sheet of paper detailing various events which would mark the director's coming year.

"You put it in a drawer, and at year's end look at it again," said Beuve.

Which Duvivier did. At year's end, he says, he was surprised to discover that its predictions had materialized.

Year after year, Camille Beuve wrote out a Duvivier forecast, and year after year the director checked with increasing interest. There was one year when the old actor predicted a "big sum of money"—it turned into a windfall of a million francs, from some forgotten stock.

Women Won't Talk BY RENE RYERSON MART

THE CATCH
CHAPTER XIX

AFTER lunch the four of us, Connie, Walter, Kathy and I, went out on the east terrace.

We were all jittery from nervous strain and it was with relief that we saw long-legged Clint Mattison striding up from the woods. Kathy hailed him and he came up on the terrace grinning at his attractive grin.

Mattison remarked about the weather, said it was grand or something equally inane, and Kathy agreed with him with so much vivacity that I sat up and took notice. I watched her and Mattison and began to conjecture like a sentimental old busy-body.

Mattison maneuvered the conversation around to fishing and reminded Kathy of her unfulfilled promise to go with him. He wanted to know if the following morning would be all right.

Kathy said she couldn't, that we had a guest coming and she'd be tied up for a few days. I noticed that she didn't tell Mattison who it was.

Little Judy came bouncing out on the terrace through the study door and ran up to Connie and hugged her tightly. Connie kissed her and asked her where Jack was. The cherub looked mysterious, and a worried frown cleaved Connie's white forehead.

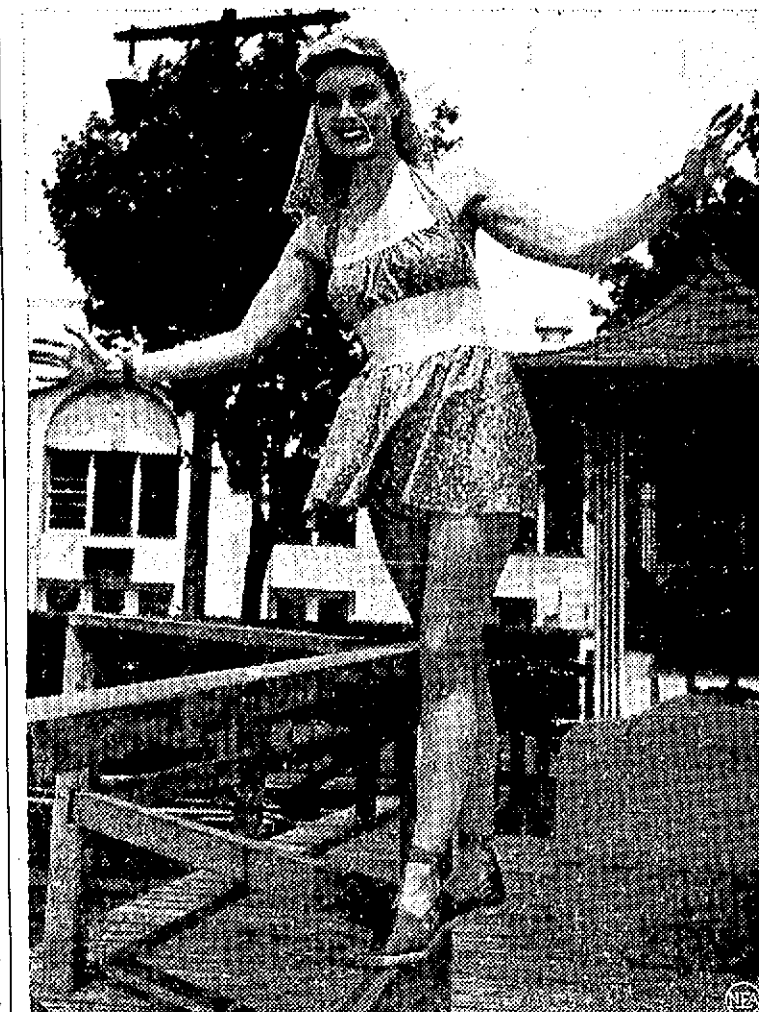

But Kathy laughed. She had glimpsed Jack and pointed him out to the rest of us. He had somehow escaped from Imogene Lake's vigilant eye and had had another try at Clint Mattison's fishing gear in the hall. Now, dragging a rod behind him he was slipping stealthily from the back hall door toward the lily pool at the far end of the east lawn.

Kathy started to call out to him, but Mattison stopped her.

"Let him alone. He won't hurt the rod. Let's see what he does."

From beginning to end of that affair Clint Mattison was my inx.

Beachwear Bulletin for Late Vacationers

By ROSELLEN CALLAHAN

NEA Staff Writer

New York—You who plan late vacations may be looking over your summer wardrobes to see what clothes you'll be wanting to take along, and finding that by now last year's swim suit is just a little faded and out of shape for such "special" wear as vacation.

If so, you're just in time to select a suit from the latest styles delivered to the shops. And here are a few pointers which may help you to choose the right one.

For those who have the figure for it, there's nothing more flattering than the scanty-panty and draped bra duos, which fit like skin. One especially effective model uses yellow satin latex for the back and flower-sprinkled red calico for the artfully shirred front of the panty and for the beautifully figure-forming bra. Girls with "spare tires" please ignore.

Other attractive models of this scanty style utilize rayon shark-skin of floral print on back ground, trimmed with crystal buttons. Rayon satin of plain colors is also most effective in this pattern, and shorts button either down the side, or in back—the latter eliminates the hip bulge.

But if you're figure isn't quite as perfect as you'd like, then consider one of the swirly-skirted, halter-necked swim and sun suits of flowered calico with elasticized midriffs and low cut sun-back, or of crackling chintzes in multi-colored pastel prints, which have a way of making you look positively sylphlike.

Those who wear sizes larger than 38 will find that the clever styling of this year's dressmaker models hides a multitude of figure faults. Take, for instance, the black-as-ink pique dressmaker suit with row upon row of narrow, crisp white pique ruffles trimming the slightly flared skirt. This is cut just long enough to cover too-thick thighs, and is topped by a softy gathered bodice, which allows the maximum of suntan without being too revealing.

And for the speed swimmer who wants to lap a few seconds more off her record, yet look as pretty as the bathing beauty who does nothing more than dampen her toes, there are snug fitting wool suits dressed up with garlands of bright embroidered flowers about the neck, and superbly styled sea gull printed failles that pack plenty of glamor into their abbreviated styling.

The one-piece maillott which gives the "poured-in" look to trim figures, are still the most popular of the elasticized models. Half-skirt gives the one-piece look aft and two-piece effect in front. Adjustable straps may be switched for even tanning.

Some of the new sunsuits take prizes, too, for combined attractiveness and comfort. Two-piece striped seersucker models boast very abbreviated divided skirts, instead of full skirts. Large patch pockets with tri mmatting that on a bra lend a dashing touch.

And of course there is always the handy three-piece sunsuit and matching skirt, equally at home on the beach or tennis court. The wrap-around skirt buttons up the front and quickly transforms the outfit into one suitable for town wear.

If the person who had shot Derek wanted to return to the house without being seen, the most natural thing in the world would have been to follow the ravine back to this line of shrubbery, and then approach the back hall door using it for concealment just as Jack had done when he had been trying to reach the pool without being seen with the fishing stick. It was as clear in my mind as if I were seeing it actually happen. The murderer stealing back to the house—our house, passing within a few feet of the pool, which is deep at the far end and filled with lily pads, and on the impulse of a moment throwing the gun into the water hoping that it would never be found.

I made my decision.

"There is one thing I think you ought to know before you hand that gun over to the police," I said, and my voice sounded hollow. "It is probably mine."

I watched their faces. All I saw was incredulity and horror and sick shock. Mattison's head jerked up and he looked at me and I tried to outstare the probing suspicion in his eyes.

"I had one," I explained carefully, "in my desk upstairs. And it's gone."

Kathy was the first to recover the power of speech. Her hand was shaking as she took hold of my arm. "Gram—you don't know what you're saying. Who would have taken your gun?"

Against my will I found myself remembering how convincingly Kathy had lied to Shaw about not knowing Derek.

"We'll have to turn it over to the police," Mattison said slowly. "It's probably the gun that killed Derek Grady."

Mulheim Given Pounding by RAF Bombers

London, June 23 — (AP) — Heavy RAF bombers blasted the German steel and communications center of Mulheim in the Ruhr last night in a continuation of a mighty round-the-clock Allied aerial offensive, the British announced today.

An air ministry communique said preliminary reports indicated the bombing was "well concentrated" and declared returning crews reported they had seen great fires still burning in Krefeld, main objective of a smashing RAF assault on the Rhineland the previous night, and at Huls, which was hit by U. S. Flying Fortresses in daylight yesterday.

RAF fighter planes simultaneously carried out intruder patrols over Holland and France, shooting down two enemy aircraft in the course of the operations, the bulletin said.

It reported 35 British bombers and one fighter had failed to return.

Forty-four bombers were lost in the Monday night raid on Krefeld. Mulheim, one of the smaller towns in the Ruhr, was described as a satellite of the great industrial center of Duisburg, which is situated at the junction of the Rhine and the Ruhr.

It is an important center of the German steel industry as well as the site of large railway car and locomotive repair shops. It also is one of the principal outlets from the Ruhr to Southern Germany by rail.

Mulheim has a normal peace time population of about 136,000. It was raided twice in 1940 but has not been attacked since.

A DNB report broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press said Oberhausen had been hit as well as Mulheim. Oberhausen, located only a few miles from Mulheim, was attacked by the RAF the night of June 14.

The German report said 24 of the raiding bombers were destroyed. As usual, the broadcast described the attack as "a terror raid," and acknowledged "heavy damage."

The German communique said the populations of Oberhausen and Mulheim suffered "major casualties."

The Canadian bomber command took part in the night's assault.

The continuing offensive has carried explosives to German Europe in conveyor-belt fashion, the Mulheim raid marking the fourth night in a row the RAF has been over the continent, starting with Le Creusot, France, on Saturday night, following up with a 1,000-mile trip to the southern German city of Friedrichshafen on Sunday night, and the Krefeld attack Monday night. During daylight yesterday, the Americans went into the Ruhr for the first time, kindling a square mile of fires in the German synthetic rubber center of Huls.

A DNB broadcast recorded by the Associated Press asserted the Allies had suffered their "greatest defeat" so far over Western Europe by losing 135 planes in a period of slightly more than 24 hours from early Tuesday until early today.

Official British and American reports, however, listed 99 bombers as lost in the raids on Krefeld, Huls and Mulheim in that period. In addition one fighter was lost on the Krefeld operations, three British planes were downed in a convoy fight off the Dutch coast yesterday, and four fighters are missing from yesterday's daylight battles, making a grand total of 107.

Records did not show immediately whether this was the heaviest loss in any similar period during the Allied bombing offensive. However, German losses reached their peak at 185 on one day during the battle of Britain when the Nazis were using smaller bomber forces than those now employed by the Allies.

London had a brief alert during the night, its 50th of the year. A few bombs destroyed 20 empty houses, which had been badly damaged in a raid last year and on which repairs had been completed only yesterday.

The air ministry reported "slight" enemy activity also over parts of Southeast England where some damage and casualties resulted.

The German high command said in a broadcast that a German convoy off Scheveningen, Holland, had repulsed a mass attack Tuesday afternoon by a "strong" British air force unit of bombers and torpedo planes, knocking down seven of the attackers.

This apparently was the same action previously reported by the British.

Washington
By JACK STINNETT
Washington — When the Connaly-Smith anti-strike legislation was laid on the President's desk, Mr.
Roosevelt was "on the spot" as he has been few times before in the 10 years he has been in the White House.
There were only three possibilities: (1) to veto the measure; (2) to sign it; and (3) to allow it to become law after ten days, without signature. For all practical and political purposes, the last two could be grouped together, with the split-hair exception that in the latter case the President would be dodging the issue by allowing to become a law a bill of which he had no enthusiasm.
The President and his advisers must have seen that signing the bill would alienate labor. The A.F.L. through William Green and the C.I.O. through Philip Murray protested it and appealed for a veto.
A number of other independent unions joined in the parade.
To antagonize this great bloc of voters meant to jeopardize the fourth term or at least control of the 1944 ballots to such an extent that all the President's plans for prosecution of the war of promulgation of the Four Freedoms peace might be sidetracked in a new and hostile administration.
On the other hand, veto of the bill meant that it would be immediately interpreted politically as a fourth term bid. Commentators would figure that the President was afraid of labor.
To veto the measure meant several things more. It meant alienation of the votes in the purely agricultural states (many of them in the South and Southwest, where political wounds are just now being healed); and going against the expressed opinions of many youngsters in the services. Some of the boys in uniform have publicly expressed dissatisfaction with the attitude of labor. They think that something must be done to curb strikes that interfere with the flow of vital war materials.
Furthermore, to veto a bill or sign it meant to play right into the hands of some of the more politically minded members of Congress. If they had any sense of humor left about the very unfunny spot they were placed in, the President and his advisers must have gotten a chuckle out of scanning the names of 100 Democrats and 31 Republicans who voted for the bill in the House and the 83 Senators who cast their "yeas." Here were friends and foes alike and among the foes a good many who must have had a wicked glint in their eyes and a "How are you going to wriggle out of this, Mr.
President," on their tongues.
Whether you are Republican or Democrat, pro or anti-New Deal, you might well give a moment to pitying the poor President in a spot like that.

"Is it true, what they say about War Bonds?"

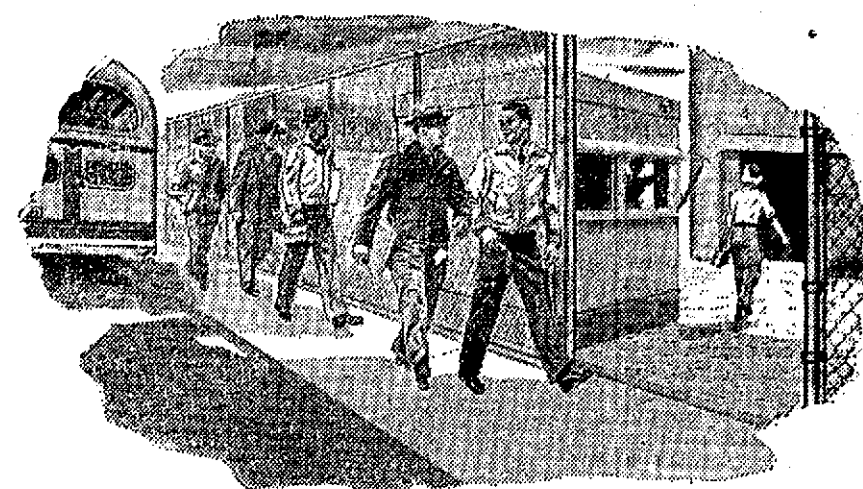

THEY SAY— "Hey, Bill, I heard that in order to pay for the planes and tanks and guns America needs for Victory, each of us should be putting at least 10 percent of our pay into War Bonds."

IT'S TRUE— "That makes sense to me, Joe. Those things cost plenty of dough and we've got to have 'em!"

THEY SAY— "Sure, I know that. And I've got a hunch our soldiers are going to need more and better equipment than any fighting men ever got before!"

IT'S TRUE— "You bet they will! And here's the way I look at it, Joe. Us guys who can't tote a gun or fly a plane can at least do our share by helping to pay for the things our fighters need!"

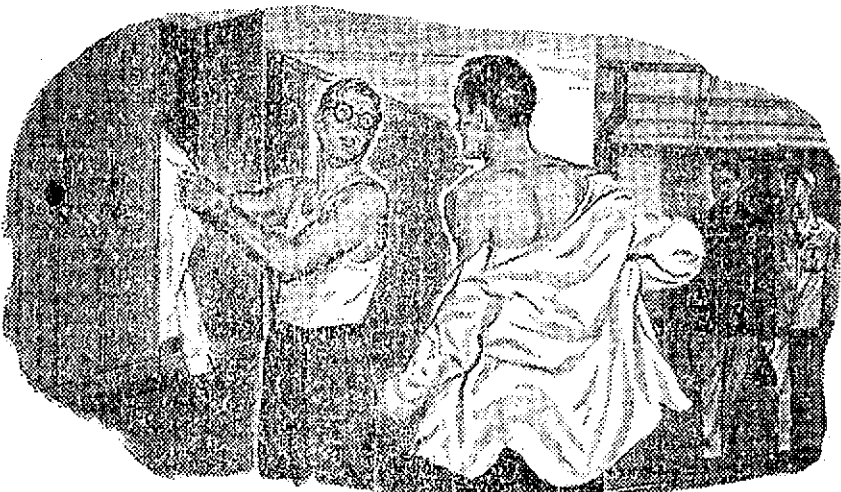

THEY SAY— "Yeah, you're right, Bill. But we're really not paying that money to the Government, either. It's just a loan to Uncle Sam until the Bond matures."

IT'S TRUE— "That's right as rain, Joe! You get it back—with interest. Every 3 bucks you put in brings you 4 when the bond matures!"

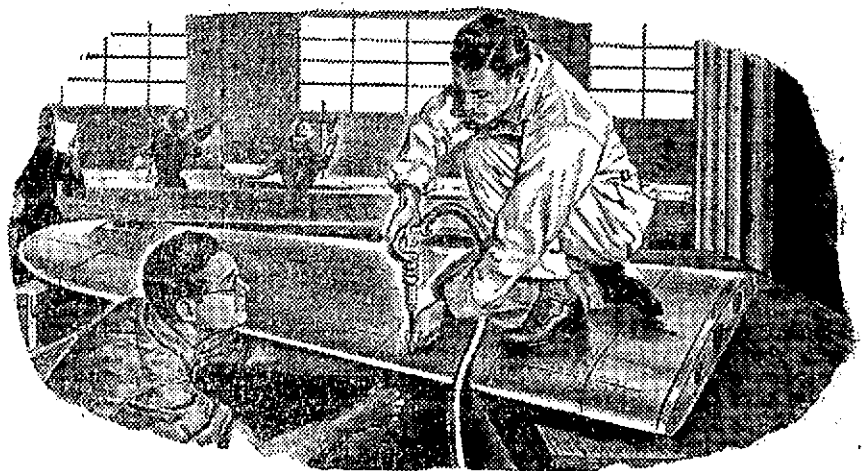

THEY SAY— "It would be hard to beat that as a sweet investment, wouldn't it? And when you lend your dough to Uncle Sam, you know he'll make good."

IT'S TRUE— "Say! War Bonds are better than dollar bills in your pocket, Joe! Not only is each one an ironclad promise to pay, backed up by the strongest Government in the world—but it makes more money for you all the time!"

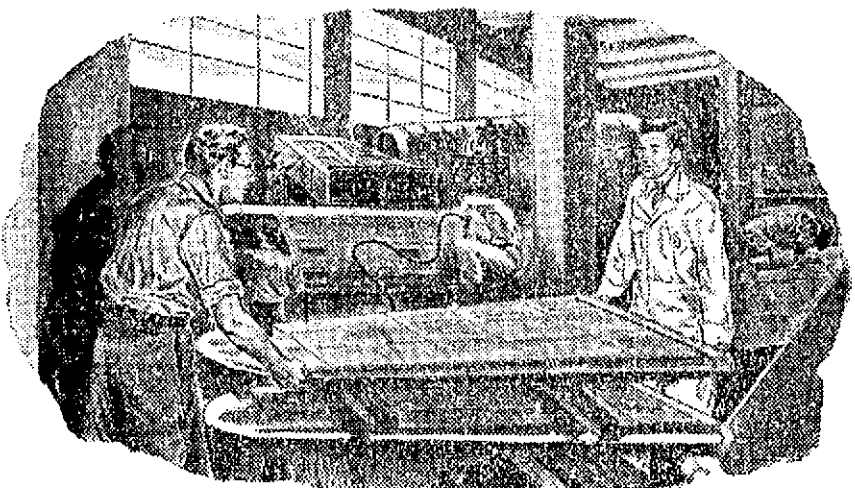

THEY SAY— "Supposing a fellow loses some of the War Bonds he buys—or somebody swipes 'em. I guess you want me to believe Uncle Sam will pay off on 'em just the same."

IT'S TRUE— "He sure will, Joe! Every War Bond you buy is registered in Washington—either in your name, or your wife's name, or whomever you pick. Nothing can happen to prevent your getting that money back—with interest."

THEY SAY— "One of the boys in the forge shop was trying to tell me that: if everybody buys a lot of War Bonds, it helps keep prices down."

IT'S TRUE— "He's right, Joe. You don't have to be a brain trust to figure that out. Here's how it works: Now that the United States is making war goods instead of cars and radios and all the things people ordinarily buy, there aren't so many of those peacetime goods kicking around in the stores. So, if people with a lot of cash in their jeans start bidding against each other to get those scarce goods, up go the prices!"

THEY SAY— "My wife has the idea, now that I'm earning more money, that War Bonds should be the Number One item on our budget—sort of a savings plan for us and the kids."

IT'S TRUE— "She's a smart woman, Joe. You're going to need a lot of things when this war is over. And there's no better way on earth to get the money for them than to save regularly now—by buying War Bonds."

THEY SAY— "Must be a lot of people owning War Bonds by now, aren't there, Bill?"

IT'S TRUE— "A lot of people? Listen! Fifty million of 'em have bought War Bonds—and I'm one of 'em. Fifty million Americans can't be wrong!"

THEY SAY— "Our plant has a Pay-Roll Savings Plan. Sounds like a handy way to buy War Bonds. I'll sign up tomorrow for 10 percent. Hmm—maybe I can make it more than that. I'll see."

IT'S TRUE— "Sure, our plant has the Pay-Roll Savings Plan. So do lots of others. And people who work in plants where the plan hasn't yet been installed would be awfully smart to get one started. They ought to mention it to their union head, or foreman, or plant manager. Believe me, Joe, you're not making any mistake when you put every dollar you can spare into War Bonds—and then a little more!"

Dr. Matt Ellis of Henderson Speaks Here

The promise of security from conflict, and the assurance that existence will be allowed to go on is what the youth of America is demanding," stated Dr. Matt Ellis of the Henderson State Teacher's College at Arkadelphia at Tuesday's Kiwanis luncheon.

"There are two trends of thought as to afterwar conditions," he continued. "One is offered by the prophets of doom who state the government will collapse, and that we will be forced to seek a new form of national unity. The other is the rosy path of progress with the promise of two chickens in every pot, and a far higher standard of living than ever before. They argue that a resumption of the manufacture of household necessities, that have been curtailed and the opening of new fields such as plastics industries will create a tremendous buying power which in turn will stimulate labor."

"The third and more reasonable trend of thought is the middle path, not so pessimistic as the first, nor as glamorous as the second. It will allow a certain amount of troublesome times, but more than make up for them with increased living standards."

"America has the strength and vision to take care of any emergency that might arise. That is the reason we are America," he concluded.

Guests at the luncheon were Roy Anderson, Rev. Baggett, Milford Daniels and Coy Seifers, all of Hope, and Mr. Bell with the Internal Revenue Department of Texarkana.

Plant Legume Hay to Meet Grain Shortage

The first step toward meeting the protein and grain shortage is to produce an abundance of high quality legume hay, says Oliver L. Adams, county agent.

Four hundred pounds of hay per month for small cows and 500 pounds for large cows should be provided for this year. As far as dairy cows are concerned, the more legumes contained in the hay, the less protein will be required in the grain mixture to provide a balanced ration.

More less-expensive feed nutrients can be produced here in the form of hay than in the form of grains. With the scarcity of grain and protein feeds, special emphasis must be given to production of larger quantities in order that dairy cows can get sufficient feed to produce the large volume of milk that is needed.

In addition to quantity, it will be necessary to produce better quality hay. Early cutting to increase the protein content, and care in curing and handling to save leaves in legumes improve the quality of hay. Nearly all plants yield more pounds of total digestible nutrients when the plant is cut in the bud or early leaf stage.

Hay cut early not only contains more digestible protein but is fine textured, more palatable, and more digestible. When cut at an immature stage, legumes tend to retain more vitamin-rich green color and a larger percentage of leaves when cured. Hay allowed to over cure or, if put up in an under-cured condition, will lose some of its nutrients, thus requiring the feeding of more grains.

The more good hay dairy cows consume, the less will be the demands on grains, the agent says.

Heroic Scouts Slashed Enemy Flank While Main Forces Battled for Attu

First American flag to be raised over Attu after its capture from the Japs was the one visible at left which was carried by the Scouts. In the right foreground, signalmen test their newly set up radio equipment.

The following article, second of two describing the heroic role of U. S. Scouts in the winning of Attu, is by Sherman Montrose. Acme Newspictures cameraman whose pictures are distributed by the wartime pool of the various photographic agencies.

Massacre Bay, Attu. — On the morning of their second day on Attu Island, a force of some 200 picked American Scouts encountered the enemy. From then on, until the Holtz Bay area was wrested from the Japanese, the Scouts held the heights which they had been sent to seize.

Without sleep and with almost no food, soaking wet and with frost-bitten feet, hampered by shifting fog over unfamiliar terrain, they continued to attack and conquered several Japanese positions.

"As we first got into action," recalled Lieut. Thomas McCarthy, "we advanced to 750 yards of a bunch of Japs and got them under effective small weapons fire. We stayed there a couple of hours to give Lieutenant Adams' platoon time to catch up with our line. Then the enemy's anti-aircraft fire opened up."

"Those Japs must have known and practiced on that terrain. They knew every rise of ground and every patch of snow. But after awhile we didn't worry much about their anti-aircraft fire. It made a lot of noise and a lot of smoke but didn't hurt us any."

"While I was there I counted 95 bursts around us—and then our planes came over and started blasting everything in sight. Boy, morale went up 1000 percent! The Japs certainly gave the Scouts something to think about besides us."

"Our enemies in the pillbox were putting out plenty and I moved up 75 yards and got them with armor-piercing shells. Before I got them, though, they killed two of Lieutenant Adams' men. Someone said there were three Japs in the pillbox. I didn't see them. Anyhow, the gun never fired again."

"From then on it was just a question of finding their guns and putting them out of commission. This wasn't easy because of the terrain giving almost perfect camouflage and the fact that their rifles do not give out a flash."

"We found it effective to move up with the fog, and then when the fog lifted we'd be closer and could get in a few rounds. Japs used the same idea and came in closer to us."

"We knocked out another machine gun, then saw Japs coming up the other side of the mountain. They were pretty darned nonchalant about it. About a thousand yards away they set up a machine gun on a big bald rock."

"They sent out snipers on either side. These guys liked themselves to rocks so they wouldn't fall no matter how much you shot 'em. You never could tell when they were dead because they'd hold their fire for some time in order to get in a good shot at one of us."

"One we filled so full of holes he looked like a sieve, but the boys kept on shooting to be sure."

Forces Joined

"By this time there were snipers all over the place. Lieutenant Engley took his platoon over to knock out the main outfit and by plain guts did. It took him all evening and night and into the next morning to clean 'em out, but finally he counted 26 dead Japs there."

"We were now in the third day and without food. What little we had left from our original day's ration and the rations dropped by plane the first day was gone."

"Engley was forced from his position by a superior force of Japs on a commanding point and I covered his retreat just as another outfit of Scouts joined up with us. The new outfit had some much-needed mortars but were almost out of ammunition. It was hell to hear our planes overhead trying to find us to drop ammunition and unable to do so because of the fog. If we had some ammunition we could have got a few of the emplacements."

"Two patrols were sent out, one to work its way back to the site of the first night's bivouac for ammunition and what food was left there, and another to try and find the main outfit, and establish communication with them. Both were successful and the next day 31 men in McCarthy's platoon shared five cans of beans retrieved from the store left behind.

By the third and fourth days, McCarthy said, the men were getting in pretty bad shape. They had been almost entirely without sleep since landing, wet throughout and with feet in terrible shape. During the last 48 hours on the island McCarthy's feet were entirely without feeling.

"But morale was wonderful," continued the officer. "The boys started to joke about their plight, the cold, the frozen feet, their hunger. They wise-cracked with the wounded, and the wounded cracked right back."

"I tell you, with guys like that, we simply can't lose a war," Wiped Out Nest

Capt. William Willoughby, of Carmel, Calif., commanding officer of the Scouts, had ordered this group to hold their position, and hold it they did—until the fifth day when troops under command of Major A. V. Hartl conquered "Bloody Point," and started streaming down to the floor of Holtz Valley near the mouth.

The Scouts went to meet them, cleaning out enemy emplacements along the route.

"We blasted houses all the way down," said McCarthy. At noon we reached the fringes of the main Jap camp on the floor of the valley and dined luxuriously on American canned salmon and other canned food found in Jap store-rooms.

"Most of the men were too tired to move. They just flopped on the ground and removed shoes from frozen feet."

"The next day—we landed Tuesday morning and that would be Sunday, I guess—we had to muster all available manpower in take up positions on the right flank of the front line."

"Forty-three men were available for duty. They were in a helluva shape to fight, but they wanted to go—and they went."

Compromise on Subsidies Shaping Up

Washington, June 22 (AP)—Possibility of a compromise settlement of the bitter congressional wrangle over subsidies shaped up in the Senate today as administration forces renewed cloakroom efforts to stave off a floor fight.

Speculation was that any agreement proposed would limit the amount and number of subsidies the government could pay out to force down food prices.

Such a proposal was offered by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) but supporters of a projected $2,000,000,000 price rollback program objected that Taft's measure would authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) to spend only $250,000,000 on subsidies in the next 12 months.

While some Senators continued to clamor for prompt action in anti-subsidy legislation, administration lieutenants sought to keep the battle off the floor until some compromise could be effected.

Thus for the time, the chief open battleground remained the Senate Banking committee room where members sought agreement on an amendment to a bill they reported three weeks ago which would prohibit all subsidies for food price reductions without congressional approval.

The amendment was inserted in a measure extending the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) for two more years and increasing its borrowing power by $1,000,000,000.

While Taft and others maintained that Congress should permit sufficient subsidy payments to care for commitments already made in rolling back retail prices of meats, butter and coffee, Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the Finance committee said:

"The principal of subsidies is either all right or all wrong. I think it's wrong."

George predicted that a general rollback of retail food prices would "run into billions of dollars" and could be used to make or break business through the granting or denying of subsidies.

One Recent Miracle of Radar Is Campaign in the Aleutians

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Copyright, 1943.
By The Associated Press)

Washington, —(AP)—One of the recent miracles of radar almost certainly is the Aleutians campaign. Despite the complete absence of official information on the subject, modern warfare obviously would be virtually impossible along that fog-cursed island chain without the aid of this new weapon to explore the way and report the hidden mountains and uncharted rocks which menace every movement of ships and planes.

The change in attitude of American officers toward the military potentialities of the Aleutians is one of the remarkable revolutions in military and naval thinking of the war in this country. Only two or three years ago the islands were considered to be almost useless because of their weather, which is probably worse than any other weather on earth.

Now they are recognized as having great strategic value. Credit for this change in opinion must surely go to radar—the wizardry of which, we may assume, has been profitably employed in clearing the short northern road to Tokyo.

In the Atlantic, radar has been found invaluable in convoy operations. It enables task force commanders to maintain constant checks on the ships in their charge, despite darkness and bad weather. It keeps them fully informed, too, on the presence of surfaced enemy submarines for miles around.

The use of radar in convoy escorting closely approximates the original tactical purposes of the apparatus as outlined by Dr. Albert Hoyt Taylor, of the naval research laboratory, and an associate, Leo C. Young, in a memorandum to the Navy Department in September, 1922. They made the then revolutionary suggestion that with radio detection equipment, destroyers operating on parallel lines several miles apart could promptly discover the passage of an alien vessel between the lines "irrespective of fog darkness or smoke screen."

But scientists are not professional naval men and then, at least, they did not speak in the high councils of the seagoing force. Conversely, few naval men are scientists, regardless of their abilities as tacticians and strategists with recognized weapons. The suggestion by Taylor and Young apparently made little impression on the men who could have given a go-ahead, because for eight years their memorandum got no approval, support or results whatever.

Taylor and Young, however, had made not only the basic discovery necessary to the development of radio equipment but also had envisioned its tactical uses. The discovery came about, as is so often true in scientific work, as a by-product of another problem they were working on and—a fact which also is true of much research—had more than one important use.

Dr. Taylor had been interested in radio for many years. A graduate of Northwestern University and of Goettingen, Germany where he attained his doctorate. He had taught at the University of Wisconsin, served as professor and head of the physics department at the University of North Dakota. From the latter school he went into the Navy in 1917 as a lieutenant (he later became a commander), and was made district communications superintendent at the Great Lakes Station.

Young and another associate in radio work, Louis A. Gebhard, entered the naval service about the same time and were assigned to Taylor's command at Great Lakes. Young had been a radio amateur and an expert railway telegrapher. Gebhard had made radio work his profession. After a period of employment by the old Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., he had set up his own shop in Buffalo, N. Y., and manufactured radio equipment. Without the benefit of extensive formal education, therefore, both men were equipped by experience and instinct for the work they were to do.

Dr. Taylor pays high tribute to their abilities. Both now are associate superintendents of the radio division which Taylor heads, having worked with him continuously since their first associations. Young is described by Taylor as "a man with a lot of native genius praise for Gebhard is couched in won three college degrees at George Washington University two in science and one in law."

After the war, when the three men had left the navy's uniformed ranks, they continued their work near Washington at the Naval Air Station, Anacostia—the research laboratory had not yet been started. Their general problem was improvement of inter-plane and plane-ground radio communications. Taylor was boss, and Young had the magnificent title of radio laboratory.

In 1921 their experiments took them into the field of radio broadcasting. Paralleling the pioneer station KDKA at Pittsburgh, they accumulated quite an incidental reputation as purveyors of entertainment. Their regular programs included a broadcast by President Harding, first chief executive to "go on the air."

One evening they put the Marine Band on the air and got fan mail from 28 states. The scientific purpose was to gather range data on naval communications.

But the work was by no means all fun and fan mail. By the summer of 1922, long hours of study and laboratory research had brought constant improvements in equipment and methods, and Taylor and Young were spending gruelling hours under a blazing Washington sun broadcasting from

Curious Dive Bomber

All metal, carrier-based, highly streamlined two-place midwing dive bomber with single engine. Resembling "Buccaneer," is high in speed, range, and armament. Slots on wing leading edge lend stability at low speeds. Does 300 m.p.h., carries one-ton bombs in racks inside fuselage.

It was at this time—as soon as the original findings were proved—that the proposal was made to try them out at sea by destroyers. But that was considered so fantastic as a practical contribution to the art of war that nobody in position to help did anything about it.
